Professor Suzanne Hagen, PhD CStat FSS, Chief Investigator OPAL & PREVPROL Trials

Suzanne is a UK researcher with an international reputation in systematic reviewing, randomised controlled trials and outcome measure development in the field of urogenital disorders (specifically pelvic organ prolapse and urinary incontinence), particularly in relation to the interventions provided by nurses and allied health professionals. This expertise has been gained over 20 years working in the NHS and academia as a statistician and health services researcher. Suzanne leads a research programme at the national Government-funded unit for NMAHP research in Scotland, based at Glasgow Caledonian University. Suzanne has established extensive links with researchers throughout the UK and internationally.