

Dr. Daniel Farb immigrated in 2005 to Israel, where he initially worked in the area of technology patents, and then founded a company based on his own patents in renewable energy and assembled a talented team which is bringing these concepts to market. He is the CEO of Leviathan Energy, which has innovations in water, wind, wave, and underwater turbines. He has written over a hundred books and CDs on management, pharmaceuticals, healthcare, and other areas. He was CEO of a small e-learning software company. He has degrees in Medicine, Executive Management, and English Literature.